Ford murder trial expected to start Monday

If found guilty, Tonya Ford could receive as much as life in prison

CALEN McKINNEY
reporter@cknj.com

It's been three and a half years since his death. And his brother says he hasn't had a full night's sleep since.

On Monday, Tonya Ford is expected to face a jury of her peers who will decide whether she shot and killed her husband, David M. Ford, who was a Lebanon police officer.

Officer Ford's brother, Darrell, said his family is ready for the trial and ready to move on with their lives.

"We're ready," he said. "We're just hoping and praying for the best, but it's nerve-wracking."

He says he will testify during the trial.

"Win, lose or draw, it's time," he said. "It's out of our hands."

Notices were mailed from the Taylor Circuit Clerk's office last Thursday to 150 potential jurors.

The trial is scheduled to begin at 8:30 a.m. at the Taylor County Judicial Center before Taylor Circuit Court Judge Dan Kelly.

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney John Miller, who is prosecuting Ford, declined to comment on the trial.

Greensburg attorney Danny Butler, who is representing Ford, said he is prepared for Monday's trial. "We're ready to go," he said.

Butler said two weeks have been set aside for Ford's trial and he isn't sure how many witnesses he will call to the stand. Since the prosecution presents its case first, he said, that might impact the witnesses he calls.

Miller has said during past hearings that the prosecution has more than 75 potential witnesses and he will likely call about 25 to 30 to testify.

Butler declined to comment on whether Ford will testify in her own defense.

Ford, 39, is accused of shooting and killing Officer Ford on Feb. 10, 2009. She pleaded not guilty to first-degree murder in November 2010.

According to court records, Butler and Miller have met to mediate Ford's case, though the case has not been settled. Butler has said during court hearings that Ford maintains her innocence.

Court can't decide on incinerator

Agrees to sign with contractor while reviewing prices, options

reporter@cknj.com

After discussing the issue at three meetings, magistrates still haven't decided whether the county should buy a new incinerator or repair the current one at the Taylor County Animal Shelter.

Instead, magistrates have agreed to contract with a local company to incinerate the Taylor County Animal Shelter's dead animals until a decision can be made. At Tuesday night's regular Taylor County Fiscal Court meeting, representatives from two companies spoke to magistrates about incinerators.

A recent fire damaged the shelter's equipment and it can't be used. Magistrates have discussed the issue at two previous meetings and considered whether to repair the current one or purchase a new one. On Tuesday, Sonny Hall, a Thermotech representative, spoke to magistrates about selling them a new "first rate, tier 1" incinerator.

Hall said his company provides service for its equipment and develops friendships with its customers.

He said the equipment the county owns is "third tier" and needs replacing. His equipment, he said, produces little smoke and meets all regulations.

"We manufacture good equipment," he said.

Hall didn't give a price for his equipment, though at recent meetings, it was discussed that a new incinerator could cost as much as $40,000.

Kangaroo care brings parents, babies closer

'Right from delivery, we put baby on momma's skin.'

He likely won't remember the experience, but his parents will.

For first-time parents Jessica and J.T. Weatherford, the experience has helped them bond with their newborn son and focus all of their attention on him.

Taylor Regional Hospital now offers a kangaroo care program for those giving birth at its Women's Center. Nicole Collins, TRH's childbirth educator, says the experience begins right after a mom gives birth.

“Right from delivery, we put baby on momma's skin,” she said.

The kangaroo care program allows newborns to be placed on their mothers as soon as they are born for their first skin-on-skin contact. TRH has offered the program for about a month.

According to information provided by Women's Center Director Jenny Dobson, the kangaroo care program can be continued throughout infancy.

The program has shown benefits for newborns, according to the information

Library board takes tax rate increase

County attorney's office joins drive sober campaign

Law enforcement to focus on drunk driving from Aug. 17 through Sept. 3

New library building could be finished in December

CALEN MCKINNEY
reporter@cknj.com

Taylor County residents might pay a bit more in taxes to the Taylor County Public Library this year.

Taylor County Public Library Board members met on Monday and voted to set its property tax at a rate that will generate 4 percent more revenue than last year.

New rates are 5.5 cents and 9.23 cents per $100 of valued real and personal property, respectively.

Library Director Julia Turpin said for a home valued at $96,600, the rate would generate a $53.13 tax bill.

If the library chose a compensating rate, which would generate the same amount of revenue as last year and could be lower or higher than last year's rate depending on property tax values, that would generate a $51.98 tax bill.

The difference, Turpin said, is just a bit more than $1.

"It's about a cup of coffee difference," she said.

will be completed before winter.

- Board members agreed to cash in two of the library's CDs and add the money to a money market account to use for construction costs.
- The Board agreed to solicit proposals from local banks for a $500,000 line of credit on a 10-year loan to help pay for construction costs.
- In her report to the Board, Turpin said circulation totals at the library are good, with young adult and DVD checkouts increasing. She said digital books are also on the rise, with a 6-percent increase in checkouts.

Turpin said 568 children participated in the library's summer reading program, which is an increase of about 30 when compared to last year's numbers.

Story hour programs will begin next month, she said, with programs in the mornings, afternoons and evenings.

She said family movie nights are continuing, with a special event soon to show "The Hunger Games."

She said the library is continuing to offer its computer classes and will soon start a book club called the Brown Bag Book Club. The club will meet once a month at noon. The first meeting is Thursday, Sept. 6. The club's first book will be announced at the meeting.

- In her report to the Board, Library Programmer Bonnie Webster said she read to several daycares and classes in July. She said the library hosted 23 programs during the month.

Webster said the library's Facebook page now has 910 followers. She said stories getting the most hits lately were news about construction of the new library, the death of former library employee Lois Gilpin and information about James Higdon, the author of "Cornbread Mafia," coming to the library on Aug. 10.

- The Board gave its approval to the library purchasing a new circulation program for $5,180. Turpin said the program is web-based, so it will be portable and can still be used if the library's server system crashes. Service calls are included with the purchase.

Most of county's state fair sponsorship paid with donations

McMahan says Amazon set to hire more than 650 seasonal employees

Also at the Taylor County Fiscal Court meeting on Aug. 14:

- Taylor County Jailer Hack Marcum told magistrates that the average commissary fund balance at the Taylor County Detention Center is $90,000. He said the funds have been used to buy a van, truck and a new lawn mower for the inmates to use when they perform work in the community. As of Tuesday's meeting, Marcum said, the detention center was housing 167 inmates that were producing income, of which 129 are state inmates, 14 from Green County, 23 from Jessamine County and one is from Cumberland County.
- In his report, Ron McMahan, executive director of Team Taylor County, said he is working with several existing businesses that are looking to expand.

- Taylor County received a volunteer recruitment award from PRIDE for increasing its spring clean-up volunteers at a higher rate than any other county in the state. In 2011, 175 volunteers participated in the cleanup. This year, 598 helped.
- Magistrates voted to proceed with closing a portion of Cat Hollow Road. Gaines cast the lone "no" vote, saying he is concerned with those who ride horses in the area having access to trails.
- A contract allowing Comcast to operate in Taylor County was approved.
- Monthly requests for road work were approved and include tile repairs, grading and graveling roads, mowing and replacing signs.
- First reading of updates to two solid waste ordinances were approved. No changes were made as to the details of the ordinances.
- Magistrates discussed what should happen if Rogers is unable to attend a Fiscal Court meeting, as happened recently. Bertram said a policy should be adopted that addresses the situation. However, he said, if no such policy exists, magistrates can simply vote at the beginning of a meeting as to who will preside. At a recent meeting Rogers was unable to attend, Bertram moderated.
- Rogers announced that the majority of the $9,000 cost to sponsor the opening reception at the Kentucky State Fair has been paid for with donations.
- A budget transfer was approved, moving a total of $37,708.52 to various line items from the county's reserve account and from several line items to reserve.
- Nearly $737,000 has been collected in occupational taxes this fiscal year. The net amount collected totals $729,551.28.

Council approves plan to buy two new police cruisers

Campbellsville University's logo will be placed on city water tower

Also at the Campbellsville City Council meeting on Aug. 6:

- In his report, Ron McMahan, executive director of Team Taylor County, said he is working with two existing businesses that are looking to expand.
- He said Amazon.com will soon be hiring its seasonal workers and would like to hire local people for those positions. More than 650 work campers are expected this year, he said. McMahan said Taylor County's unemployment rate in June was 8.3 percent, a bit higher than the 8.1 percent rate in May.

The state and United States rate in June were 8.4 percent. He said he anticipates the local rate will decrease this month.

- A plan to purchase two new police cruisers was approved. Council members had previously approved the purchase but hadn't yet decided how to finance it. They agreed to finance the $50,672 purchase for two years at 3.7

Patriotism, emotions make us love Olympics

Why do you love the Olympic Games? Is it because, for many of these sports, we rarely see them on television aside from every four years?

Admit it, you really don’t see gymnastics on TV much and when you do, it certainly rarely is as captivating as it is when an Olympic medal is on the line if the gymnast can stick a landing.

That’s why every four years in the Winter Olympic Games, we pay a little closer attention to sports like speedskating and curling. Any other time, we couldn’t care less.

We embrace the unknown during the Olympic Games like we do at no other time.

Or do we love the Olympic Games because we see a break-through athlete, like American gymnast Gabby Douglas, and upon hearing her story of struggles throughout her young life, we become an instant fan?

Or the unparalleled acts of grace and sportsmanship we witness from our athletes and others?

Or is it because every four years a new country gets some time in the spotlight, like Great Britain is for this year’s Summer Games? From a trek through its history with opening night ceremonies to sparkling new venues, London has been a winner for these Games.

The Olympic Games are a lot different than a World Series or a Super Bowl or a college football bowl game.

We love it because there is compelling pageantry and raw, unrehearsed emotion from the athletes. We love it because, for many of these athletes, it is the culmination of four years or more of training for possibly one event.

When an Olympic athlete is on the medal stand and their national anthem is playing and tears stream down the athlete’s face, you know the gold medal dangling from their neck means so very, very much.

That is why we take great pride in seeing the United States ahead in the medal count and choke up when our athletes are on the medal stand singing the words to our national anthem.

We love it because there is more innocence in sports at the Olympic Games and there is unified pride in what our athletes accomplish, whether it be the men’s basketball team, synchronized swimmers or a fencer.

So as we say goodbye to the 2012 Olympic Games, we look ahead 18 months to the Winter Games in Russia when we embrace a new group of athletes and sports.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Reader has fond memories of cruising

Wow! Just when I thought Campbellsville was finally making strides for improvement and actually growing, I read the article “Cruising causes concerns for residents.”

Really? I grew up with cruising. Every Friday and Saturday night we all looked forward to going to town and seeing our friends and showing off our cars. There was no trouble. A policeman was usually patrolling the area. The only time there was any trouble was away from town, not in town.

I believe our residents and the council are overlooking a golden opportunity. We spent money when we were cruising. We had to buy gas, we bought food, we went to the bowling alley and spent money. This could be a windfall for the businesses downtown.

Last time I went downtown after 6 p.m., Main Street was dead, no one driving up the street, no one hanging out at the businesses and most businesses were closed. The businesses could boom from cruisers.

Also, if Café Bonin closed, it was not because of cruising.

We don’t really have much in this community for kids to do anyway, other than going to the lake. This is a harmless activity. We all did it and most of us have fond memories of this.

Contrary to the opinion of some council members, it does not affect traffic flow. We have Broadway and First Street.

If you start changing streets to one way and/or closing some streets, then you will have a problem with traffic flow.

As for the Burdens, I’m sorry they are having a difficult time, but if you move to any downtown, there are traffic noises and other types of noises from crowds of people. If you want quiet, move into the county.

It reminds me of people who move across from a school with ballgames and school traffic and complain about the noise.

Common sense, people. We don’t need more ordinances and more laws and blocking roads. Try to open your minds and see that downtown can benefit from this.

These kids have money and will spend it if given the opportunity. Don’t run them off, throw out the welcome mat and bring some money back into this town.

Work begins on roads, bridges

There is a lot going on in Taylor County. We’ve started county road blacktopping projects and we are working on some bridges.

I want to remind the community to be aware of their surroundings when we are doing these projects, especially for possible detours.

We will notify when we will be doing any construction work for closures by newspaper and on local radio stations, so please be patient and watch for the construction in the areas.

Along with the road work that we are doing, I would like to remind people that school has resumed in session. Please be watchful of the children.

We are working on a project with the Natures Conservancy on the Bates-Atchley Mill. We will be in the process of purchasing 6.5 acres, which includes the old mill. There is a lot of history from this area that may increase our tourism in Taylor County. The addition will showcase the Homeplace even more. Also, we are doing some improvement to the Toll House, and this will encourage more tourism and visitors to Taylor County.

I will be attending a meeting at the end of the month to review how other communities encourage and involve people to explore trails. I would like to have more trails like this in Taylor County.

This meeting will give me ideas on what we could possibly do to expand our existing trails or have more.

The Kentucky State Fair will be starting on Aug. 16 and going through Aug. 26. I encourage everyone who can to attend to support their own community and state.

I encourage everyone to do their part and recycle. Not only does recycling benefit our county and our environment, it improves our future. When you are using the recycling facilities, please rinse out all of the containers and metal cans.

As county judge/executive, I would encourage the residents to get involved in their community and ask questions of their elected officials to understand what they are doing for their county, which is why I say my door is always open. Stop by any time!

GUEST COLUMN

Rumor has it

In the workplace it can surreptitiously move under the guise of “networking.” In the church it can be elevated to the status of “prayer requests.” But when brought to a court of law, it is usually called “defamation of character.”

It can be dangerous and destructive. Written or spoken words intended to harm or hurt others can have serious implications, especially when those words are communicated in the public domain.

People engage in gossip for various reasons. Most of us have gossiped at one time or another and we’ve been the victims of it, too. Chronic gossipers with destructive intentions tend to have poor self-esteem. Putting others down seems to make them momentarily feel better about themselves.

Gossip can also be a way of getting attention, giving the gossipier a sense of power. Being the first with the exclusive news gives some people an adrenaline rush.

And some people’s motive for gossip is simply revenge. They want to get back at someone who has hurt them in some way.

Just as idle time is the devil’s workshop, so boredom is gossip’s incubator. I sometimes find myself asking, “Where do people have the time to come up with this stuff?”

And all it takes is a word pulled out of context, written in just the slightest way, and voila: You have a nice, juicy piece of gossip cooked to perfection and ready to serve a hungry recipient who chews on it, then passes it to the next gossipier. Naturally, it gets nastier with each helping.

Gossip is nothing new. We humans have been engaging in it for centuries.

Dr. David Whitlock
can be reached via e-mail at drdavid@davidwhitlock.com

ries. The classical Greek Athenian philosopher Socrates observed, “Strong minds discuss ideas, average minds discuss events, weak minds discuss people.”

The biblical King David spoke about those “who are always twisting what I say” (Psalm 56:5) and he called out a gossipier: “You love to destroy others with your words” (Psalm 52:4). Even Jesus of Nazareth wasn’t immune to gossip. One of the rumors about him was that he was “a glutton and a drunkard” (Matthew 11:19).

No, the rumor mill has been busy for many years.

But with the advent of texting, Facebook, Twitter and YouTube, the old rumor mill has evolved into an electronic phenomenon, allowing gossip to go viral instantaneously. And once it’s out, it’s virtually impossible to retrieve.

What’s in the public domain can damage a person’s reputation and that can result in legal consequences. If you haven’t thought about it, you should. You might find yourself in trouble before you realize what you’ve done. And, you need not think you have to be a helpless victim of malicious gossip, either.

Defamation of character is passing along false information as fact. The intent has to be to hurt a person or an organization, and it has to be told or written to people other than the victim. So, if you tell the furniture salesman to his face that he is a lying scoundrel because he sold the furniture he promised to you based on what you said you would pay, that’s not defamation of character. But, sending an email to his customers or publicly accusing him of the same is.

More specifically, slander is when defamation of character is spoken. Libel is when it’s written.

If you are the victim of defamation of character, legal action may be your only recourse. But if at all possible, try and ignore it. Making more of the matter can do just that, make more of the matter.

You can always take the tactic of Henry, whom Mildred, the church gossip, accused of being a problem drinker. She had seen Henry’s old pickup parked in front of the town’s only drinking establishment and that was enough evidence for Mildred to pronounce poor ol’ Henry guilty.

When apprised of her accusations, Henry didn’t explain, defend or deny anything. He said nothing.

But later that evening, Henry quietly parked his pickup in front of Mildred’s house, walked home and left it there all night.

Don’t you love Henry?

Near the end of her hit, “Rumor has it,” pop vocal artist Adele sings the words, “Just ‘cause I said it, don’t mean that I meant it.”

And I might add, “Just ‘cause you heard it, don’t mean that you need repeat it.”

Because that’s the way rumors have it.

HELP....

for grandparents raising grandchildren

Many grandparents who are raising grandchildren live on a limited income when the children come to live with them.

Faced with growing expenses and limited incomes, they often have a difficult time making ends meet. They may go deep in debt or dip into their retirement savings just to pay the monthly bills. Help may be available.

Grandparents in Kentucky who are providing primary care for a grandchild that has not reached his or her 19th birthday may be eligible for assistance through the Kentucky Family Caregiver Program.

Grandparents of any age who meet financial guidelines and are not receiving Kinship Care can receive financial assistance or supportive services that may include information about services that are available, assistance in gaining access to services, individual counseling or support groups and caregiver training.

Financial assistance could be used to buy clothing, respite assistance, educational supplies or assistance, required legal services, medical and dental services and other expenses as authorized by the Department of Aging and Independent Living.

To qualify, grandparents must be related by blood and must be the primary caregiver of the child. The child's parent may not live in the home.

The Kentucky Family Caregiver Program is a state-funded program and is one of the services offered through Kentucky's Department of Aging and Independent Living. It is administered by the regional Area Agencies on Aging.

City School Board sets tax rate

Rate will produce 4 percent more revenue than last year

CALEN MCKINNEY
reporter@cknj.com

Those who pay Campbellsville School taxes could pay a bit more this year. Campbellsville Board members agreed on Monday night to set a property tax rate that will bring in 4 percent more revenue than last year's rate.

Finance Director Chris Kidwell told Board members that the District has chosen the rate that provides 4 percent more in revenue for as many years as he could find research. Last year's rate was 46.5 cents per $100 of valued property. This year's rate will be 49.7 cents, he said.

Kidwell said the rate will produce about $96,000 more revenue for the District, which will help make up for decreased state funding.

"The state gives us less money per child to work with," he said.

For example, Kidwell said, the District will have to pay $155,000 more this year for retirement costs.

"I think it's imperative that we do the 4-percent increase," he said.

Superintendent Mike Deaton said more costs are falling to school districts than in the past, and to continue to provide the services and provide the education it does, the Campbellsville School District must make the 4-percent increase.

"We're not crazy about it, but we feel it's imperative," he said.

The state allows school districts to seek as much as a 4-percent increase without being subject to voter recall. A hearing is required for public comment.

Districts could also choose a compensating rate, a rate that will bring in the same amount of revenue as the year before and could increase or decrease from the previous rate depending on property values. Districts could also choose a rate that would bring in more than 4 percent more in revenue. That would be subject to voter recall.

A public hearing has been set for Monday, Sept. 10, at 5 p.m. The Board's regular meeting will follow at 6 p.m. at the Campbellsville Elementary School library. Both are open to the public.

Academic Spotlight

Taylor County Adult Learning Center was the focus of the Board's monthly academic spotlight.

Staff members Annette Jefferson, Frank Kidwell, David Payne, Melinda Parrott and Midge Hunt talked about the various programs and services the center provides. They include GED, parenting and computer classes and more.

Jefferson, who serves as director at the center, said it recently received an award for excellence for the fourth year in a row. She said the center has been ranked fourth out of 120 in the state.

Jefferson said there has been lots of change at the center. She said Payne now teaches classes at the Taylor County Detention Center and The Healing Place.

After long-time director Diana Salmon retired, she said, there were several administrative changes made.

Parrott is an administrative assistant. Hunt is assistant director and Kidwell helps with technology.

Jefferson said the GED test will soon be completed online, which will mean those who aren't familiar with computers will have to learn how to use them to complete their GED. Those who have started their GED, she said, will need to know that their results will be voided if they haven't completed their GED by December 2014.

"There's a lot of change in the air," she said. "What hasn't changed is our focus. And our focus is our students."

She said the center helps many adults who simply want to be able to help their children with their homework.

Hunt said the center is now working with the Taylor County Extension Office to host math and reading classes. She said the center also offers life skills classes at the Campbellsville Housing & Redevelopment Authority.

Also at the meeting:

- Board members voted to give certified and classified employees a 1-percent raise this school year.
- Certified employees who have reached the 25-year level will receive $750 more and classified employees who have worked for 20 years will receive an increase of 25 cents per hour.
- In his monthly report, Deaton said this school year has begun with a good start, which he attributes to staff members. He said there was minimal confusion on the first day as to bus routes and scheduling.
- Deaton said enrollment figures are still tentative as the schools continue to enroll new students.
- As of Monday, the District had about 1,100 students enrolled, he said, with 483 at the elementary, 353 at the middle school and 272 at Campbellsville High School.
- "Couldn't ask for a better start to the year," Deaton said.
- Deaton said more students are eating breakfast and lunch now that the District is providing those meals free.
- The Board had final approval of Kentucky School Board Association policies. Also approved was the District's cafeteria plan.

- A trip to Nashville, Tenn., was approved for 21st Century Director Cindy Perkins to attend a conference.
- Shortened school days were approved for three students who need more intensive therapy than the District can provide.
- Kidwell presented the District's July financial report. July revenue was $823,047.09 and expenses totaled $924,112.82. The closing balance at the end of July was $2,559,354.80.
- The Board met in closed session for seven minutes to discuss personnel. No action was taken.

Tourism director attends professional development program

One of 233 who attended

Alisha Nelson, executive director of the Taylor County Tourist Commission, has completed the first portion of a three-year professional development program that will lead to certification as a tourism marketing professional. Nelson was one of 233 tourism professionals enrolled at the Southeast Tourism Society Marketing College last month. The week-long program turns the facilities of North Georgia College and State University in Dahlonega, Ga., into a laboratory to teach tourism marketing each summer. There is no other professional development program like STS Marketing College and it is recognized nationally for its training of tourism leaders. Six hundred and 26 people have earned TMP certification. "In the tourism industry, TMP certification carries a lot of weight," said Bill Hardman, president and CEO of the Southeast Tourism Society, a 12-state organization that promotes travel and tourism in the southeast. The STS Marketing College began in 1992 to provide continuing education for tourism professionals and feted its 21st anniversary this year. Tourism ranks as the first-, second- or third-largest industry in each STS member state. Students come from convention and visitors bureaus, chambers of commerce, attractions, hotels and other segments of the tourism industry. The curriculum covers topics such as branding, social media, packaging and sports marketing. Heritage tourism and research are courses that have attracted special interest in recent years. "The fundamental concept of STS Marketing College is that the curriculum is practical. What students learn can be put to practice as soon as they get back to their workplaces," Hardman said. Twenty-three senior executives in the travel and tourism industry were the volunteer faculty. The program attracts students from throughout the Southeast and occasionally from other states. This year's program included students from Maryland and Oklahoma. "Southeast Tourism Society is recognized nationwide for the cohesiveness and camaraderie it fosters in the region. No other region in the U.S. has a similar organization. STS Marketing College is a major project to build skills and professionalism in the tourism industry," Hardman said. Southeast Tourism Society, created in 1983, is headquartered in Atlanta and has about 800 members who represent travel industry businesses, state tourism departments, chambers of commerce, convention and visitors bureaus and travel media. Its activities include cooperative marketing programs, continuing education, professional development and travel industry policy advocacy. For more information, visit southeasttourism.org.

New CU men's residence village to open in fall

Town-house style buildings will be energy efficient

JOAN C. MCKINNEY
Campbellsville University

Campbellsville University is adding another 48 beds to the men's residence village, which is set to open this fall adjacent to the current men's residence village.

The 9,100-square-foot new residence village will also be more energy efficient, including better insulated walls and roof areas, high efficiency HVAC equipment, programmable thermostats and high efficiency windows and water heaters.

There will also be water saving toilets, faucets and showerheads and compact fluorescent lighting.

Dave Walters, vice president for admissions and student services, said CU's new housing option for men reflects the same design as several of the university's new housing additions.

The units are a town-house, two-story style option where each individual unit houses six students.

There are three bedrooms with two students each, three bathrooms, a kitchenette area and a common living room area.

Walters said the university's enrollment continues to grow each semester in resident student population, as does the need for more housing.

"This addition expands our housing base and provides the opportunity for flexibility in assignments and gives our students more options," Walters said.

"This style of housing has continued to be very popular with our students. It creates a living experience with more space per student while also engaging the students in a community learning and living environment."

James Dean, men's housing area coordinator at CU, said CU will have

Campbellsville University has eight residence halls on campus with North, West, East, Broadway and the Men's Residence Villages for men with 574 beds. There are 472 women's beds in Stapp Hall, Village Phase 1 and Village Phase 2.

CU hires assistant professor of graphic design

CHRISTINA L. KERN
Campbellsville University

Dejan Mraovic of Serbia has been employed as assistant professor of graphic design at Campbellsville University, according to an announcement from Dr. Michael V. Carter, president of CU.

Mraovic, a graphic designer, photographer, author and filmmaker, has redesigned the currency in his native country for his master of fine arts thesis exhibition project and hopes to present it in Belgrade next year for possible adoption.

He will be teaching in CU's new art major with graphic design emphasis. The programs includes drawing, elements of design, graphic design, three-dimensional design, art history and other courses.

"Campbellsville University feels blessed to have Professor Mraovic coming on board," Dr. DeWayne Frazier, associate vice president for academic affairs, said.

Mraovic was a recipient of the Harry and Grace Foster Scholarship at Ohio University in 2011-2012. He received third place at a photo competition "The Richness of Difference — Multiculturalism and Tolerance" in Serbia.

He also received five honorable mentions for design of wall and table calendars at the 10th, 11th, and 12th exhibition of the Most Beautiful Calendars and Christmas Cards at the Museum of Contemporary Art of Vojvodina, Novi Sad, Serbia in 2006, 2007 and 2008.

He has also participated in five international film festivals.

He is the son of Damjan and Nada Mraovic of Serbia.

CU's Clay Hill Memorial Forest to be considered as prehistoric site

Local students help with effort

LINDA WAGGENER
Campbellsville University

Clay Hill Memorial Forest has been designated for submission toward inclusion in Kentucky's historic registry as a "known prehistoric site" thanks to the work of the Kentucky Archaeological Survey team and visiting students from the area.

CHMF is Campbellsville University's science and nature preserve.

Middle School students from Lebanon and Campbellsville Independent schools spent a morning at CHMF recently searching for and plotting graphs of locations of Indian artifacts.

Three archaeologists from the Kentucky Archaeological Survey conducted a hands-on archaeological survey of one of the CHMF warm season grass fields burned off in early April.

One of the students told CHMF director Dr. Gordon Weddle, "Today we made history."

If history wasn't made, then it was discovered as four arrowheads were found which date to what is known as the early-archaic period, 10,000 years before present day, according to Eric Schlarb, staff archaeologist with the Kentucky Archaeological Survey at the University of Kentucky.

Schlarb, organizer of the event, said he was very impressed with the site. His group will make a follow-up visit and professionally map the site and submit it for inclusion in the historic registry.

All of the artifacts found will be returned to CHMF for a future prehistory display at the Joan White Howell Environmental Center.

More than 35,000 local elementary, middle and high school students have visited CHMF on field trips since it was donated to CU in 1996 in memory of the Joan White Howell family.

Clay Hill Memorial Forest is used to promote environmental education on all levels and serves as an on-site teaching center and outdoor learning laboratory for K through 12 students and teachers, university scholars, scientists, researchers, government agencies, community leaders and faculty members.

For more information, or to schedule a visit to Clay Hill Memorial Forest, contact Weddle at 789-5328 or gweddle@campbellsville.edu.

Kangaroo: Bringing parents, babies closer

Dobson provided, such as temperature and breathing regulation, weight gain, stronger attachment to parents, greater breastfeeding opportunities, less crying and longer periods of alertness and sleep.

Sitting in her room with her 2-day-old son, Lathan Blaine, sleeping peacefully on her chest, Weatherford says her son was crying just after he was born.

"When they put him on me, he instantly stopped," she said.

She said he laid on her calmly and then tried to breastfeed.

Weatherford said she took prenatal classes at TRH to learn what she could expect when giving birth and learned about kangaroo care.

"I read all I could read," she said. "I was really excited."

Weatherford said she was concerned that she would have trouble breastfeeding.

"They said this would help," she said.

Collins said TRH wanted to begin kangaroo care after receiving information about it from a Louisville hospital. She said it's rare for a hospital in a small town like Campbellsville to offer such a program.

"We wanted to get on board," she said.

Though the concept isn't a new one, Collins said, the kangaroo care program has only recently gained momentum in health care facilities.

"The idea is new again," she said.

Before the kangaroo care program, Collins said, all of the examining of a newborn was done in a separate area and then a baby was brought to its mother.

"Now we do everything on mom," she said.

Those babies who are born with health issues aren't as stable, Collins said, and therefore aren't considered for kangaroo care.

Since beginning the kangaroo care program, about 50 mothers have used it, according to Collins. She said the vast majority of mothers have loved it.

"Moms like this," Collins said. "We've only had one that was not completely comfortable."

Collins said kangaroo care is very natural and is a great way to help mothers bond with their newborns.

In addition to kangaroo care, TRH offers many other classes and programs to help new and expectant mothers.

Collins, who has worked at TRH for about 10 years and spent most of her time in the newborn nursery, has served as childbirth educator since January. She got the position when Dobson was named director of the Women's Center. Margaret McVay, who had served in that capacity for many years, recently retired.

TRH offers free prenatal classes from 6 to 8 p.m. on Tuesdays. The course is a series of five classes. Collins said 13 couples are currently enrolled.

She said it's her job to provide educational materials to those who will give birth at TRH to make sure they know what to expect.

Collins said the expectant mothers discuss breathing and relaxation techniques as well as nutritional issues, breastfeeding and pain management.

"I believe in education," she said. "It's important to ease the anxiety."

And Collins said kangaroo care can help with that, too.

Collins, who comes from a family of nurses, said she didn't use kangaroo care with her children but would have if it was used then. She said she loves her job and enjoys taking care of newborns.

"And then I get to send them home," she said, with a smile.

Court: Can't decide

David McMahan, who has been maintaining the county's incinerator, discussed the many problems with the county's equipment and said it hasn't worked properly for the past few years.

Magistrate Matt Pendleton said he contacted SuperNova Manufacturing Inc., which makes incinerators like the one the county owns, and asked how much it would cost to repair the county's equipment, which was purchased in 2010.

Pendleton said there has been some confusion about the company the county bought its incinerator from. The company was thought to have gone bankrupt but is now under new management.

Pendleton said a SuperNova employee told him it would cost about $5,500 to repair the county's equipment.

He said he believes the county should repair the equipment it has rather than spend a large unbudgeted amount to purchase a new one.

Mark Antle, owner of A&S Livestock and Feed, spoke to magistrates and offered to pick up the shelter's animals and incinerate them for $1,000 a month.

He said he is licensed and uses an incinerator like the one the county owns. Antle has had his equipment since 2009 and replaced about all of its parts.

Pendleton said he would like to research what the county has spent on maintenance, fuel and other costs associated with the incinerator before agreeing to contract the service to Antle.

He made a motion for SuperNova to repair the county's incinerator and for the Court's New Projects and Special Services Committee, the group that discusses issues involving the shelter, to continue researching the equipment to decide if the county should budget for a new incinerator. Magistrate Tommy Corbin seconded the motion.

Before voting, however, Taylor County Judge/Executive Eddie Rogers said shelter staff members are taking its dead animals to Marion County to be incinerated. He said he doesn't know how much that service is costing.

Rogers said if the county repairs its incinerator, it might not be able to receive any insurance proceeds to help with the cost. The county could file its insurance claim again, however, and see if it will be awarded any money.

He said the county has received several calls from residents who live near the shelter complaining about smoke and a foul smell coming from the incinerator.

Magistrate Richard Phillips said there seem to be many questions remaining about the proper action to take. He suggested that the New Projects and Special Services Committee continue to meet to discuss the issue and contract with Antle until a decision is made. He said that will give magistrates time to decide the best solution.

Pendleton then withdrew his motion. Phillips made a motion to contract with Antle and have the committee research more options. Magistrate Ed Gorin seconded the motion.

Before voting, Magistrate John Gaines asked why magistrates should contract with Antle's company without knowing what Marion County charges for the service. Antle said he will come to the shelter and transport the animals. The county is taking the animals to Marion County. Phillips' motion was then unanimously approved.

Discussion then moved to other topics but eventually came back to the incinerator.

Corbin asked if a representative from SuperNova, which is based in Georgia, would consider coming to talk to magistrates. Rogers said he will ask.

Magistrates discussed the New Projects and Special Services Committee group scheduling a meeting, though no date was set.

Ford: Murder trial expected to start Monday

February, those involved in the case realized that selecting a jury could have been difficult around the July Fourth holiday.

Before the June 25 date, Ford's trial was set for this past January, when some newly-found information in the case pushed the date back six months.

During a hearing in January in which a key witness was scheduled to undergo a deposition, the prosecution told Taylor Circuit Court Judge Dan Kelly about the new information. As a result, Kelly canceled the deposition of Butler said on Monday that he was only interested in mediating the case if the prosecution was going to dismiss it. He said innocent people don't routinely meet to negotiate a plea agreement.

Officer Ford, 40, was found shot to death in the head at his Graham Road home in Campbellsville. Ford called the Campbellsville/Taylor County E-911 Center and said she had arrived at the home and found that her husband had been shot.

Taylor County Coroner Terry Dabney said in 2009 that an autopsy confirmed Officer Ford's death as a homicide.

A year and a half after Officer Ford's death, on Oct. 19, 2010, a Taylor County grand jury convened in special session to hear from 17 witnesses and then issued an indictment charging Ford with first-degree murder.

She was arrested at 9:52 a.m. the following day at the Taylor County Courthouse. She was released from the Taylor County Detention Center on Nov. 9, 2010, after family members posted a $30,000 cash bond. She has remained out on bond since.

Monday, which is three and a half years after Officer Ford's death, is Ford's sixth trial date. There have been no court dates in Ford's case since this past January.

Before Monday's date, she was scheduled to face jurors on June 25. However, Miller said in Linda Williams, Ford's mother, after Butler asked that it be rescheduled.

The nature of the new information has not been discussed and Miller has declined to comment on it.

In November 2011, Ford's trial was reset to this past January after Williams had surgery and would be unable to testify.

In August 2011, it was announced that a new witness, Williams, had come forward. The case was reset to November 2011.

Williams, of Lebanon, is expected to testify that her daughter told her she shot and killed her husband.

The trial was originally set to begin in May 2011, but was delayed three months because of scheduling issues.

If convicted, Ford faces as much as life in prison. The prosecution has said it will not seek the death penalty.

• An indictment is a legal accusation only. It does not establish guilt.

• Stevie Lowery, editor of the Lebanon Enterprise in Lebanon, contributed to this story.

Eric Graves begins his second season as head coach at Taylor County High School and despite losing several key offensive performers, the Cardinal mentor expects a good campaign.

"We saw some good things and some things we need to work on," Graves said after last Friday's scrimmage at Adair County.

"I did tell the guys that this week (in the 7:30 opener tomorrow at home vs. McCreary Central) when we held them after three or four plays, it would be our ball." (The first part of the scrimmage consisted of teams keeping the ball for 10 plays.)

Eagles' early schedule could be a treacherous trail

Three heavy favorites plus cross-town rival in first five games

BOBBY BROCKMAN
sports@cknj.com

Dale Estes guided Campbellsville High School as head coach on an interim basis in 2008, but Friday night will be his first opening night as head boss of the Eagles' football program.

"I am exited and ready to do," Estes said when he accepted the job in early July after Jay Cobb's resignation after two seasons.

His enthusiasm does not seem to have dampened any after last Friday's dual scrimmage vs. LaRue County and Casey County.

"We played well," Estes offered. "The kids played really hard and I was pleased at how well we looked.

"We still have got lots of things to work on, but we competed really hard."

Campbellsville comes out of the gate vs. Russell County, who was 9-2 last season, and has one of the state's best running backs and one of the Commonwealth's best kickers, in the fourth annual Forcht Bank Bowl at Campbellsville University on Friday (6:00).

And, it does not get easier for the Eagles the first half of the season with games at North Laurel and at CU vs. Green County sandwiched around a battle with cross-town rival Taylor County.

Junior signal-caller Zach Durham played a lot last year, but this season it's his team to guide from the start.

Senior Dra Thornton, a stand-out on defense last season, will play a bigger role on offense this season, with the graduation loss of leading rusher Tashaun Hoskins.

As many as three freshmen could start for CHS in the opener and the roster consists of only six seniors and three juniors.

"If we can stay healthy, I think we can be competitive," Estes continued. "But, we've got a tough schedule, especially early."

LaRue County plays Adair in Friday's nightcap (8:30) with Marion County meeting Evansville (Ind.) Central (6:00) and Green County battling North Bullitt (8:30) in the Forcht Bank Bowl.

Crystal ball sees tough prep seasons for local teams

The not-so-accurate crystal ball in January picked Campbellsville to "clip" Taylor County 13-12 in high school football and for the Eagles to go 5-5 overall and 1-1 in the play-offs and the Cardinals to go 4-6 and be denied a post-season berth.

A lot of things have happened since then, but after wiping off more dust, the crystal ball will not let this old prognosticator change his picks much for 2012.

Here's a week-by-week look at our local prep teams and what might, but probably will not, happen:

Campbellsville

Russell County provides a tough opener for the Eagles of coach Dale Estes as the Lakers were one of the better teams in the state before being upset in the Class 4-A play-offs last season.

The young Campbellsville team may struggle to score while the Lakers may keep ringing up the scoreboard. Look for something like 49-6 Russell County.

It may not get much easier for CHS when it ventures to North Laurel next Saturday.

The Eagles could/should have won at South Laurel last year, but this year it's North instead of South. The home team wins the Cumberland Bank Bowl again 21-14.

Week three (CHS-TCHS) we've already talked about and week four should mean a 20-7 home-field win over Bethlehem.

Green County will stop the Eagles' modest winning streak 37-7 back on the turf at CU.

CHS heads into district play at 3-3 after a 34-9 triumph at Paris.

Williamsburg on the road is never easy and this season will be no exception as the Eagles absorb a 28-20 loss before downing Lynn Camp (30-6) and Berea (28-13) at home to finish second in the district. Fort Knox pins a 21-19 loss on CHS in the regular-season finale.

A home play-off win will again precede a road post-season loss.

Taylor County

McCreary Central was Eric Graves' first win as Cardinal head coach and they will start off 2012 as a TCHS' victim at 26-12.

Casey County has been a nemesis for the Cardinals, but Taylor County will end that bugaboo with a 14-12 home-field win next week.

Week three has already been talked about and the Cardinals will square their record at 2-2 with another home triumph (26-12) against Breckinridge County.

However, district play begins with Boyle County (49-6) and concludes after losses to Marion County (21-18), Lexington Catholic (55-0) and Mercer County (28-12).

Taylor County closes out the 2012 slate with a road win at Barren County (7-6) and a home triumph vs. Hart County (28-12).

Preparation for deer season

Deer season is just a few days on the calendar away, and it's time to make final preparations for the upcoming hunts. Preparation is a key to success. My outdoor writer friend Tammy Sapp has posted some tips to get ready for opening day. These suggestions will increase one's chances of tagging a deer, and making the opening more enjoyable, even if you don't harvest a whitetail the first day.

Tammy regularly posts hunting and other outdoor information, including education, on the web at: Kalkomey.com. It's well worth checking out.

The triple digit temps may have fooled you into thinking that summer is never going to end, but the fact is early season waterfowl, dove and big game seasons are just around the corner. Squirrel season is already here, early waterfowl season just days away, and deer archery season begins Sept. 1 here in Kentucky.

With these season openers right on our heels, make sure you set aside time to get ready. Tammy jotted down nine tips to help you prepare.

1. Practice with your bow, sight in your rifle or pattern your shotgun (wear your hunting clothes to keep it real).
2. Inspect your gear. Replace whatever is worn out, broken or doesn't fit.
3. Treat your hunting clothes so

PHIL JUNKER
is an outdoors writer.
He can be reached at outdoorscribe@yahoo.com

they are scent-free and repel ticks.

4. Review your hunting regulations to brush up on the basics and learn about any changes.
5. Buy your hunting licenses, permits and stamps.
6. Get permission to hunt private land. If you already have the go-ahead, touch base with the landowner for last minute instructions and intel on wildlife populations and their travel patterns.
7. Scout the area you plan to hunt. Study your maps.
8. Set up and inspect tree stands and blinds. Make sure your fall-arrest system is shipshape.
9. If you're a new hunter or plan to introduce one, don't forget about taking a hunter safety course or bowhunter education course.

In many states, you can enjoy the convenience of taking a hunter education course online at www.hunter-ed.com. The training offered at this site is approved by the state agencies responsible for hunter education, and it's the same material students learn in the classroom.

If you're a bowhunter looking for safety and skills training, check out bowhunter-ed.com. The content for this course was developed in conjunction with the National Bowhunter Education Foundation, and it's approved by all states that require it.

Even better news: studying at hunter-ed.com and bowhunter-ed.com is free. If you or your student must be certified before buying a hunting license, you pay a one-time fee that is due only if you pass the test. Online hunter safety courses are available in participating states, so visit hunter-ed.com or bowhunter-ed.com to take a course specific to your state.

Several states require students to pass an online course and a field day to complete all hunter or bowhunter education requirements. Field days are designed to offer hands-on lessons in how to be a safe hunter. Before you take your online course, check your state's hunter education requirements. If you are required to attend a field day, make sure there is one available.

Field days can fill quickly and completing the online course doesn't guarantee you a spot at a field day. In many states, you can now find and register for a hunter education field day or classroom course at www.register-ed.com. You can even register for an event using your smartphone, tablet, laptop or desktop.

According to Tammy, preparation will help you have a safe and successful hunting season.

Ambrose wins with amazing finish

In an amazing last lap finish Marcos Ambrose went from third to first in Sunday's Sprint Cup race, as he survived Kyle Busch's spinning car and several bumps from runner-up Brad Keselowski.

Events leading up to the wildest finish of the season actually began on a restart with 16 laps to go in the 90-lap race. Keselowski was leading, but as soon as the green flag was given, Kyle Busch and Ambrose jumped ahead of him.

Keselowski was able to pass Ambrose, but by then, Busch had checked out on the other cars and led until the beginning of the final lap.

Right after the white flag was given, signifying one more lap, Busch's No. 18 spun in some oil. Keselowski took advantage of Busch's bad luck and was able to get by, with Ambrose right on his rear bumper.

Keselowski and Ambrose remained close, with minor bumping and shoving for almost the entire lap. Finally, Ambrose was able to make a move under Keselowski as the cars were in sight of the checkered flag. But even after Ambrose had gotten the lead, the two drivers were still bumping and rubbing.

"What a last lap," Ambrose said. "I mean that was about as hard as I've ever raced. We kept getting in oil and going all over the track. I just had to take my chances, but this was a race I'll remember for a long time."

It was Ambrose's second Cup win at the Glen. His other victory came in 2011.

"There was oil all over the track," Keselowski said. "I got in oil, Marcos got in oil, and Kyle got in oil. But the way we were able to race each other is the way racing should be."

Jimmie Johnson finished third and is the new points' leader.

Clint Bowyer, Sam Hornish, Greg Biffle, Kyle Busch, Matt Kenseth, Regan Smith, and Martin Truex were the remaining top-10 finishers.

Jeff Gordon, last week's Cup winner at Pocono had a top-10 finish going, but spun out near the finish line.

"There was oil all over the track," Gordon said. "I'm pretty bummed out right now. We were good on the restarts, but to have something like this happen is pretty bad."

Dale Earnhardt Jr. spun out late in the race and finished 28th. He dropped from first to fourth in points.

Pole-sitter Juan Montoya had a spinout along with mechanical problems, and finished 33rd.

Penske Racing currently fields two Dodge Charger cars in the Sprint Cup Series and two Dodge Challenger cars in the Nationwide Series. Penske Racing announced in February that it would end its partnership with Dodge, which started in 2003, at the end of the 2012 season.

Weekend racing: The Cup and truck teams will be at the 2-mile Brooklyn, Mich. track, while the Nationwide teams are in Montreal, Canada for a road course event.

Saturday — Craftsman Truck Series MIS 200 at noon on SPEED. Nationwide Series NAPA Auto Parts 200 at 2 p.m. on ESPN. Sunday — Sprint Cup Michigan 400 at noon on ESPN.

Racing Trivia Question: What year did Jimmie Johnson win his first Cup title?

Last week's question: How long will it take ousted Cup driver A.J. Allmendinger to complete the NASCAR-mandated drug rehabilitation program?
Answer: The program lasts between one and three months, then it will be up to NASCAR as to when he will be reinstated.

Cards face rough road to qualify for play-offs

Sophomore quarterback Hunter Christie, gained valuable experience down the stretch in 2011, but will have to start this campaign without three graduated offensive weapons — multi-purpose back/receiver Blake Dudgeon, hard-nosed runner Cody Newton and huge lineman Lucas Bradshaw.

Christie, who guided the Taylor County past Hart County 41-39 in the regular-season finale last season, will depend on senior Daulton Turpin as his main offensive threat. Turpin, who started last season at quarterback, had two touchdown runs and two TD receptions from Christie in the Hart County triumph.

Taylor County does return four starters on the offensive line in seniors Jason Reynolds, Austin Wise, Austin Harris and junior Hunter Willis, who will be joined by fellow junior Blake Mardis.

The Cardinals' biggest problem again is their district alignment where they must finish in the top four of a five-team district that also consists of Lexington Catholic, Boyle County, Marion County and Mercer County.

New mobile app puts flooring in hand

Features make finding new flooring a breeze

Applications for smartphones and tablets are everywhere today. And more than ever, people are using these applications to save time and money while finding that perfect product to enhance their busy lives.

In 2011, there were almost 1.2 billion mobile Web users worldwide, the International Telecommunication Union estimated. This includes nearly half (46 percent) of Americans, according to a 2011 study by comScore.

Naturally, many of these mobile Web users are homeowners and maximizing the value of their biggest investment is at the forefront of their minds. Flooring is vital to achieving that goal, and a new flooring application for iPhone and iPad is leading the way.

Lumber Liquidators – North America's largest specialty retailer of wood flooring – recently introduced a new version of its Floor Finder application with features that make finding the perfect floor a breeze.

In addition to providing mobile access to every floor in Lumber Liquidators' inventory, the latest Floor Finder app includes a feature called The Visualizer. This allows users to see how a floor will actually look in their very own room, using a room photo taken by the user. These photos can also be uploaded to social media platforms where friends and family can share their opinions on the new, virtual flooring.

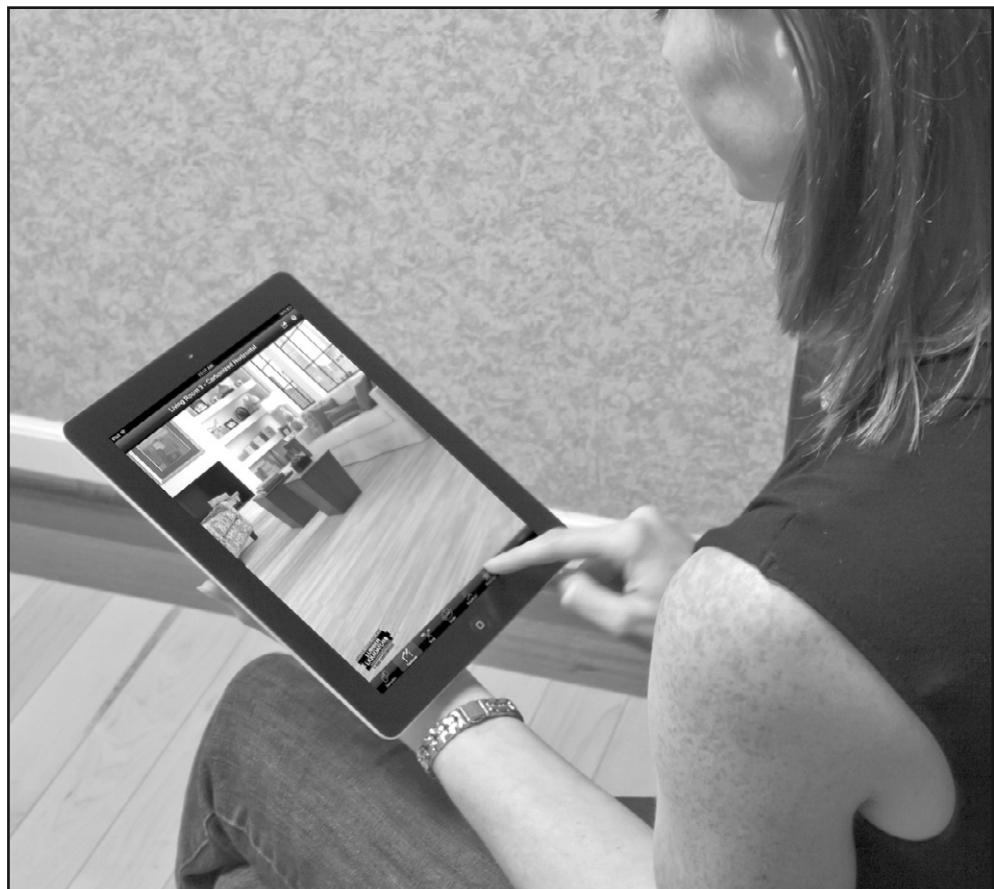

Users can also make purchases directly from the app or scan QR codes located in stores or in catalogs to get more product information and exclusive deals. And when they're ready to buy, there's a store locator in the application and a calculator to help customers determine the amount of flooring needed for the upcoming project.

Lumber Liquidators Founder Tom Sullivan believes everyone deserves to get the best for less and find flooring that's right for their home. "Now, in addition to the free samples and expert advice homeowners can get at a Lumber Liquidators store, they have a new app to help them pick the perfect floor," Sullivan says. "And just like our advice, it doesn't cost a dime."

To learn more about the Lumber Liquidators' free Floor Finder app, see a video of it in action, or enter its sweepstakes to win an iPad plus $1,000 toward Lumber Liquidators flooring, visit <http://www.lumberliquidators.com/l/flooring/FloorFinderApp>.

Energy efficiency tips

Save money with these changes

Saving money is on everyone's mind this winter season. If you're looking for ways to save, look at your home, and see if you can improve on your energy efficiency - thereby keeping a few extra dollars in your pocket.

• Instead of continuously running back and forth to the thermostat to constantly keep readjusting the temperature, install a programmable thermostat and preset the times you want the temps lower or higher.

• To help your furnace operate better, hire a qualified company to clean the ducts, blower, cooling coils and heat exchanger. To find someone certified contact NADCA - the HVAC Inspection, Maintenance and Restoration Association.

"A clean heating and cooling system helps to increase the airflow through your furnace, which in turn helps to make your home more comfortable," says Matt Mongiello, president of NADCA. "And when you combine a clean system with controlled temperatures, you'll notice the savings on your utility bills."

• Wash your clothes only in cold water so you don't have to spend money using the water heater. And make sure you only process full loads to help conserve the number of loads you run and water you use.

Affordable decorating tips to take your home from ho-hum to high style

Add color, style and personality to rejuvenate your home

Feeling uninspired in your space? Updating the decor in your home is an easy way to add more color, style and personality to rejuvenate your residence. Whether you're making a few updates, like new artwork or wall colors, or renovating an entire room with a completely new look, decorating should be fun, not stressful. With a few simple tips, you can up the design ante in your home without breaking the bank.

Decorative painting for design
Painting can consist of much more than simple strokes of one color. Take things to the next level with decorative painting. Create different patterns on your walls with textured rollers to achieve an artistic design. Sponge and fabric paint rollers provide unique patterns to give your walls a one-of-a-kind look. Low in price and high in design, using textured rollers is a great option for redecorating on a budget. Painting stripes in your room is a refreshing way to update your current color scheme. A sequence of wide and narrow stripes in complementing colors is a stylish option. To achieve crisp, clean lines between each stripe, FrogTape brand painter's tape will get the job done. The patented PaintBlock Technology applied to the edges of FrogTape helps prevent paint bleed, leaving precise lines and keeping the transition between your colors looking sharp.

A plethora of plates

Artwork is a great way to change things up and give any room a boost. Expensive traditional framed pieces of artwork aren't your only option anymore. Instead, create an eclectic art piece with plates you already own, or find them at garage sales and antique stores. Opt for various sizes and shapes and attach each one to your wall with plate hooks. You can cover an entire wall, or focus on a smaller area - but before you get started, be sure to lay out your design on the floor first. This way, you'll achieve your desired look, without extra nail holes on the wall from hanging as you go.

Perk-up hallways with runners; rooms with rugs. While re-energizing your home, the hallways may seem a little drab. Add a pick-me-up to your walkway by hanging portraits with funky frames along the walls. Add a runner along the length of the floor for a touch of pizzazz. Runners come in a multitude of lengths, patterns and colors - not to mention price ranges. Updating the flooring will keep your feet cozy and help to diminish the sound of footsteps during the night.

If you have a space you want to update, but a full room makeover isn't in your budget, consider an area rug to spruce things up. If the color in your room is dull, the rug can add visual interest and a pop of color, serving as an aesthetically pleasing addition. Area rugs also help to break up the space of a larger room and can add grandeur to a small space. A new rug will also protect your pre-existing carpet, vinyl and hardwood floors, keeping them looking newer, longer.

Opt for accents as design elements

No home redecorating project is complete without a few perfectly placed accents. These interesting items stand out from your primary colors and furniture pieces, offering a fresh look to any space. Accent pieces - like chairs, frames or vases - will spice up a monotonous color scheme, while harmonizing with everything else you may already have in a room. Consider a bright beanbag chair for your child's bedroom, a bold lawn chair on your patio to enthrall while entertaining or a lamp base in a complementary color on your console. Keep in mind accents are meant to speak for themselves; so there's no need to have another elaborate piece in the room to pair with an accent piece. Just one affordable piece is all it takes. When the redecorating bug bites, embrace the opportunity to freshen up your home inexpensively. With a pinch of creativity and a dash of design inspiration, you can easily make over any space into one that's perfect for you.
